

Hunstanton is a popular Victorian seaside resort town and civil parish in Norfolk, England, renowned for being the only west-facing resort on the east coast.

This unique geographical feature gives the town its local nickname – “Sunny Hunny” – and makes it one of the rare places on the eastern coast where you can watch spectacular sunsets directly over the sea.

It is highly celebrated for its distinctive three-layered, striped cliffs of red chalk, white chalk and brown carrstone.

Key Highlights:

- SEA LIFE Hunstanton Aquarium: A major marine sanctuary featuring an underwater ocean tunnel, a penguin beach enclosure, and Norfolk’s primary seal rescue and hospital facility.
- Hunstanton Pier & Funfair: A classic seaside pier layout offering extensive indoor and outdoor coin-operated amusement arcades, slot machines, and children’s rides.
- Esplanade & Sensory Gardens: Landscaped Victorian gardens that display vibrant flowerbeds during spring and summer.
- Main Beach (New Hunstanton): A lively, lower shoreline characterized by rock pools and chunks of chalk exposed at low tide, ideal for crabbing and family paddling.
